

The Joint Perforating Company Limited Quality Management System Scope

The Joint Perforating Company Limited including its remote support function has based its Quality Management System on the philosophy and approach of the standard - Automotive Quality Management System Standard IATF 16949:2016.

The Joint Perforating Company Limited is able to provide product and services to evaluated customer supplied specifications and requirements only, therefore justifying exclusion of product design or development requirements from its Quality Management System.

The Joint Perforating Company Limited has implemented and applies its Quality Management System to the manufacture of interrupted perforated tube in Stainless Steel and other alloys in various sections .Cutting, laser profiling and polishing of tube .Bending, general manipulation and manual welding, together with the assembly of components manufactured and purchased .

The Joint Perforating Company Limited has evaluated its customers specific requirements, has considered relevant external and internal issues and the requirements of interested parties and has included them within the scope of its Quality Management System that it applies at it's manufacturing site and remote support location at UKF Stainless Limited.

Authorized For Issue :

Phil Morris
Chairman - UKF Stainless Group Limited
05.05.2017

QMS Scope Distribution List - QMS Manual & Company Notice Boards

Reviewed For Ongoing Effectiveness,Suitability & Issue:

M.R.Hadley

M.R.Hadley

Group Quality Manager - UKF Stainless Group Limited

05.01.2017